Cleaning Incentive Scheme (CIS) Award Ceremony

CLEANING INCENTIVE SCHEME

It pays to keep Changi Airport spick and span.

That was what Mr Unni of Chye Thiam Maintenance, and Ms Nancy Wong of Campaign Complete Solutions discovered when they were named Best Cleaner (Budget Terminal), and Best Supervisor (Terminal 3) respectively, at a ceremony on 28 February 2011.

The Cleaning Incentive Scheme (CIS) Award Ceremony saw 16 cleaners and supervisors receiving plaques and $500 Changi Dollars vouchers each. The CIS motivates and recognises the efforts of cleaners in keeping Changi Airport's four terminals in clean top-notch condition.

Changi Airport deploys an estimated 1,200 cleaners to carry out daily cleaning activities. Working on three rotating shifts, these personnel also ensure that facilities such as gatehold rooms, aerobridges, lifts, escalators and immigration counters are spotlessly clean.

Choosing award winners from this sizeable posse of cleaners and supervisors was no easy task. Award-winning cleaners had to display initiative in their daily cleaning tasks, and were nominated by their resident managers for consistently delivering quality service. Similarly, award-winning supervisors had to be proactive and vigilant when performing their duties, and were also assessed on their ability to motivate cleaners to perform their best. The number of times these individuals had been voted Best Cleaner or Best Supervisor of the month throughout the year was also taken into account during the selection process.

Best Cleaner award recipient, Mr Unni, is appreciative of the recognition he received for his hard work. Having been at the Budget Terminal for just two years, he was totally surprised when informed of his award. When asked how he planned to use the vouchers, Mr Unni thoughtfully replied, "I will bring my wife, daughter and mother to visit Changi Airport and will give them a treat."

For Best Supervisor award recipient, Ms Wong, winning the award is an affirmation of her commitment to service excellence. Stationed in T2 before, Ms Wong left Changi Airport six years ago. However, convinced that there was more to contribute and lots to learn in a new terminal, she returned when T3 opened. Of the award, a beaming Ms Wong has this to say, "Of course the money is useful, but more importantly, I feel proud to be recognized by Changi Airport."

By the second quarter of this year, there will be a new row of retail shops at Terminal 3's Departure Check-in Hall

MORE REASONS TO SHOP AT CHANGI

Whether you are flying or not, shopping at Changi Airport will soon become more exciting!

Changi Airport Group has embarked on a development project to expand and revamp the retail space at the public areas of Terminal 3.

Covering Basement 2, Levels 2 and 3, the development project will increase the total floor space for retail and F&B by more than 10% to some 220,000 sq ft. This will enable CAG to expand its retail and F&B offerings at the public areas, thus making Changi an even more attractive destination to visit for local residents.

"With many unique recreational facilities at Terminal 3 like The Slide@T3, Changi Aviation Gallery, children's playgrounds and activity corners, as well as the largest landside retail offering among all of Changi's terminals, Terminal 3 is already a very popular destination for locals, especially among families with children. Building on this, we want to give our visitors even more to see and do while they are here, further enhancing the airport experience for them, while at the same time growing our landside retail business," said Ms Jean Hung, VP, Landside Concessions of CAG.

A key part of the Terminal 3 retail development project is the expansion of retail space at Basement 2. Upon completion, the number of concessions there will increase by about 50 retail and F&B outlets.

Development works at Basement 2 began in late 2010. Upon completion of the revamp at the end of this year, visitors can look forward to an exciting retail mix, ranging from fashion and accessories, beauty and wellness, children's toys and apparel, candies and deli shops, to a wide array of restaurants including cafes, fast food joints and restaurants.

Meanwhile, at the Departure Check-in Hall on Level 2, a new row of six retail shops will be created. In addition, the existing 3-Top mall at Level 3 will undergo reconfiguration works to further optimise the retail space.

Soon, shoppers can look forward to the arrival of exciting new brands to Terminal 3, such as Carl's Jr (burger chain), Kim Joo Guan (barbecued pork retailer), Durian Mpire (durian pastries retailer) and Bratpack (shoes and bags retailer). Families can also expect more family and child-friendly facilities and services, such as an indoor playground.

On top of an enhanced retail offering, shoppers can also enjoy attractive savings by shopping at Changi's public areas. Under CAG's GST-absorption programme, almost 100% of the retail shops situated at Changi's public areas absorb GST on purchases made at their stores – offering shoppers 7% savings compared to downtown stores.

"With an improved retail offering, which is in the works, plus the value proposition of our GST-absorption programme, there are now more reasons for both local residents and travellers to visit Changi," said Ms Hung.

EXCHANGE OF FIRE AND EMERGENCY EXPERTISE AT IAFPA ASIA PACIFIC CONFERENCE

On 9 and 10 March 2011, Singapore saw the assembly of officials from airport, municipal, military, industrial fire and emergency services and aviation safety personnel from around the region convening at the Raffles Hotel for the inaugural IAFPA Asia Pacific Conference.

The conference was organized by the International Aviation Fire Protection Association (IAFPA) which was formed in 2000 to promote the information exchange, study and improvement of aircraft rescue and fire-fighting and airport facility fire protection.

The Asia Pacific IAFPA conference featured an exciting line-up of overseas and Singapore speakers sharing their experiences on a variety of themes such as Crisis Management & Preparedness, Aviation Disasters – Learning from the Asia Pacific Experiences, Technology of Tomorrow – Beyond 2020, Terrorism and Aviation Disasters and Human Factors in ARFF Training.

“The Organising Committee worked hard to reach out to many delegates in China, India and Southeast Asian countries. I am pleased that we have been successful in attracting a large delegation of 23 Chinese airport officials, the largest delegation to date from over 11 airports in China,” said Mr Cletus M John Packiam, Chief AES who was also the Organising Committee Chairman.

The conference had a large turnout of 125 delegates from 18 countries ranging from the United Kingdom, Denmark, the United States, India, South Korea, Vietnam, Thailand and Australia. The conference, also presented numerous networking opportunities for the delegates.

In addition to imparting their knowledge and experience, the IAFPA conference speakers and delegates had also contributed from their hearts by giving generously to support the Children-At-Risk Empowerment Association Singapore (CARE Singapore), CAG’s corporate social responsibility partner. In just one hour during the conference Gala Dinner, a notable sum of $3,900 was collected and the IAFPA matched the amount to bring the total to $7,800. The donations will go towards CARE Singapore youth development programme for youths-at-risk.

CAG BURSARY AWARDS

It was double happiness for Mr Shamsudin bin Masod when two of his children received CAG bursary awards.

The proud father of four from CAG's Airport Emergency Services (AES) department hopes that the bursaries would spur his daughters Nur Amalina, 16, and Nurul Anisah, 13, to persevere and attain a level of education he could only dream of as a child.

Presented by Changi Airport Group's CEO Mr Lee Seow Hiang on 15 March 2011, the CAG Bursaries recognise the academic efforts of children of CAG's staff. Valued at $250, $350, and $500 for the Primary, Secondary and Junior College (JC) or Pre-University Levels respectively, these bursaries are CAG's way of showing care for its employees, and support for education. It is hoped that the 76 bursaries awarded this year would help defray the cost of school activities as well as to motivate staff's children to excel.

A recipient of the bursary in the JC category is Pang Mei Na. Having received bursaries since primary school, Mei Na credits her father, Mr Pang See Pui of the AES department, for her motivation and drive to excel. For now, this Hwa Chong JC student has clearly set her sights on pursuing a tertiary education and is grateful to CAG for the timely boost to her savings for university.

Meanwhile, sisters Nur Amalina and Nurul Anisah can look forward to an increased participation in enrichment activities as they plan to use the bursaries they received for excursions and study trips. When asked how they felt about receiving the bursaries, younger sister Nurul Anisah shyly volunteered, "Happy!" while elder sister Nur Amalina added, "Happy and inspired". # FLY TO THE 'LAND OF THE SAMBA' FROM CHANGI AIRPORT

Sao Paulo,
Brazil

Singapore

The launch of Singapore Airline's inaugural flight to Sao Paulo, Brazil on 28 March 2011 was a significant milestone for Changi Airport.

This marked Changi's first city link to South America. Passengers can now fly direct to the continent's largest country and the land of samba dancing, bossa nova music, "futebol", sun-kissed beaches and some of the world's most energetic and vivacious parties.

The new three-times weekly service from Changi to Sao Paulo will open up opportunities for trade and tourism links and will further strengthen Changi Airport as a global hub. Sao Paulo is the largest city in Brazil and plays a strong influence on the region's commerce and finance. It is also known as one of the country's major cultural and entertainment centres.

Singapore Airlines will operate between Barcelona and Sao Paulo under codeshare arrangements with Star Alliance partner Spanair. This will make Singapore Airlines the only airline offering direct flights between Southeast Asia and Brazil.

CHANGI AIRPORT SWAYS TO THE SAMBA BEAT

Visitors at Changi found the airport pulsating with the vivacious beat of Samba music and elaborate green decorations adorning all three terminals for the “Fly to Brazil” carnival.

The three-week long event in March was organised to celebrate Changi’s new connection to Sao Paulo, the largest city in Brazil. Starting from 28 March, Singapore Airlines flies thrice-weekly from Singapore to Sao Paulo, via Barcelona. The Brazilian city is the first city in the South American continent linked to Changi Airport.

Not surprising for a country known to produce internationally acclaimed ‘futebol’ stars and inspiring the football craze, the football game booths were a popular feature at the carnival. Aspiring Pelés and Ronaldinhos pit their shooting skills at the ‘X-Box Kinect Soccer Challenge’, a virtual goal-scoring game that uses motion sensors, or took down their opponent at the Foolsball table.

Apart from football-themed games, airport visitors were also entertained by drum performances, capoeira demonstrations and samba dances by native Brazilian street performers. Visitors also had an opportunity to dress up in brightly coloured Brazilian costumes for a unique photo moment.

Shoppers and diners were also not left out, as they participated in the “Fly to Brazil” lucky draw simply by spending a minimum of S$10 in a single receipt and stood a chance to win a pair of air tickets to Sao Paulo.

WHAT'S NEW

SLEEK SPORTSWEAR AT ADIDAS

The famous "Three Stripes" finally arrived in Changi Airport with adidas opening an outlet at Terminal 3 Departure Transit Lounge in January.

Known for its sports footwear, the German company also offers a wide collection of sportswear and accessories. Over the years, adidas has grown from a brand that not only produces the perennial favourites such as their black and white sneakers but has since extended its product range to bags, casual wear and even fashion.

The Changi Airport store stocks the popular adidas Performance label and even has a dedicated area for adidas Originals merchandise. No prize for guessing that it is the adidas Singapore shirt that claims the spot of "Best Seller" at the airport outlet.

For the sport enthusiast, it is definitely worth checking out the miCoach collection, a fitness activity tracking system which works based on training programmes designed by the world's top coaches. The miCoach collection is designed to help you plan a suitable workout programme and keep track of your progress and performance.

With a 15% discount for airport staff, it is easy to look good and feel good in your new Adidas threads while working out.

INDULGE IN AUTHENTIC JAPANESE TASTE AT SABOTEN

Following its success in Japan and the debut of its first Singapore outlet at Millenia Walk, Saboten brings traditional Tonkatsu dishes to Changi Airport Terminal 1 Departure Check-in Hall earlier this year. The restaurant, which started since 1966, has more than 100 outlets worldwide.

As you enter the newly opened restaurant, you will be greeted by the friendly staff and the sweet aroma of fried but non-greasy meat. Tonkatsu, or Japanese deep-fried pork cutlet, is breaded and cooked with healthy palm oil at Saboten.

The most popular dish on the menu is the Saboten Special which consists of breaded shrimp, mini pork tenderloin, half sized pork loin, crab cream croquette and a scoop of ice cream. It also comes with free flow of rice, miso soup, thinly shredded cabbage and hot tea. What's worth a special mention is Saboten's family recipe of tonkatsu sauces that differentiates this restaurant from the competition.

Airport staff gets to enjoy special set meals at $11.80 and 20% off the ala carte menu.

RESTORING THE SHINE AT T2

As part of the continuous upgrading and maintenance of Changi Airport's existing facilities and infrastructure, Changi Airport Group has commissioned a floor repair specialist to carry out restorative work on the granite flooring at Terminal 2's Departure Check-in Hall.

The current floor finishing consists of granite tiles that have different coloured speckles to form an aesthetically-pleasing and unique pattern design. This floor finishing was completed as part of the T2 upgrading project in 2005. Due to the heavy traffic movement of people, luggage, trolleys and other heavy-duty equipment, wear and tear have been discovered on about 250 granite tiles. The damage includes chipping at the corners of the tiles and line cracks on the surface.

The option to replace the damaged tiles entirely was ruled out as new tiles would affect the unique pattern of the existing flooring, and the process of replacing new tiles will cause major disruptions to the operations at the Departure Check-in Hall.

Instead, the floor repair specialist uses a new technology, "Koing Stone Repair System", to repair the damaged granite tiles and ensure that the repaired tile is as close a match to the original granite finish.

Repair works on all the damaged tiles commenced in December 2010. With the restoration project completed in end-March 2011, passengers, airport visitors and staff can now enjoy the beauty of the restored granite flooring beneath their feet at the T2.

INAUGURAL ZHENGZHOU-SINGAPORE FLIGHT ARRIVES AT CHANGI AIRPORT

Changi Airport Group (CAG) and the Henan Civil Aviation Development and Construction Committee (HCADCC) marked a significant milestone in their cooperation as Changi Airport welcomed Zhengzhou, the capital of Henan Province, as a new city link on 27 March 2011.

The inaugural flight from Zhengzhou follows the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding by CAG and HCADCC in November 2010 to develop air connectivity between Singapore and cities in Henan.

Xiamen Airlines will operate the daily Zhengzhou-Xiamen-Singapore flight on a 169-seater B738 aircraft in a two-class configuration.

Xiamen Airlines already has two daily services to Singapore – from Tianjin (via Xiamen) and Hangzhou (via Fuzhou). The addition of Zhengzhou to Changi's network brings to the number of new city links to China to six since January 2010, following Guilin, Shantou, Hefei, Qingdao and Nanning.

Passenger traffic between Singapore and China has shown promising signs of growth. In 2010, some 3.38 million passengers travelled between the two countries, an increase of 16% over 2009. In particular, traffic between Singapore and secondary cities in China (excluding Beijing, Guangzhou and Shanghai) grew 22% over the same period.

With the addition of Xiamen Airlines' flights to Zhengzhou, some 430 weekly scheduled flights will connect Changi Airport to 26 Chinese cities, reinforcing Singapore's position as the most connected Southeast Asian city to China.

NEW HOME FOR GARUDA INDONESIA, VIETNAM AND SAUDI ARABIAN AIRLINES

With the continued growth of passenger traffic at Changi Airport, Garuda Indonesia, Vietnam Airlines and Saudi Arabian Airlines have moved their operations from Terminal 1 to Terminal 3 in March.

The three carriers operate a total of 158 weekly flights to and from Changi Airport as of 1 March 2011. Garuda operates seven daily services to Jakarta and one to Denpasar (Bali). Vietnam Airlines has two daily services to Ho Chi Minh City and one to Hanoi while Saudi Arabian Airlines flies twice weekly to Jeddah via Riyadh.

Vietnam Airlines' Station Manager, Nguyen Khac Toan, said "We are pleased with the move from Terminal 1 to Terminal 3. Doing so would provide our passengers a more pleasant airport experience and cater to Vietnam Airlines' future capacity expansion needs."

With this move, Changi Airport Group will have greater flexibility to manage on-ground operations and continue to provide a first class experience for passengers.

FIRE STATION TOUR FOR YOUTHS FROM CARE SINGAPORE

A group of youths from the Children-At-Risk Empowerment Association Singapore (CARE Singapore) was offered an exciting glimpse into the workings of CAG's Airport Emergency Service (AES) Division during an action-packed tour of Fire Station 1. This fire station tour is part of CAG's corporate social responsibility programme and was organised by Corporate Development and International Relations (CDIR) Division together with AES on 14 and 15 February.

During the tour, the youths had the opportunity to learn about general fire safety and participate in 'live' fire-fighting sessions, under the watchful eyes of the AES team. They were also impressed by the AES team's efficiency and preparedness in handling different types of aviation crises as they witnessed an aircraft rescue and fire-fighting demonstration.

The youths were not the only ones who enjoyed themselves, as the AES team summed it up by saying, "These students did not only gave us an unforgettable experience. Their innocent smiles and lively laughter reminded us of why we joined the Service. At the end of the day, we were all pretty sure that we gained something from each other."

CARE Singapore is a registered charity and youth development agency established since 1997, providing school-based social work services and reaching out to youths-at-risk from local primary and secondary schools.

Together with CARE Singapore, CAG launched the Youth Passport Programme (YPP), a structured long-term programme providing opportunities for CARE youths to experience the airport business and learn life skills. The programme aims to give youths new perspectives, thereby engendering aspirations for greater things in life. Besides the fire station tours, CAG also organises other activities such as airport tours, Games Day and workshops for the youths.

CAG INTERNSHIP PROGRAMME

As an organisation with a firm principle on nurturing and valuing talent as its greatest asset, CAG runs an annual internship programme that provides work experience for young individuals interested in learning more about airport operations and the aviation industry.

The structured programme which runs for 10 weeks from May to July each year, exposes undergraduates in their penultimate or final year of studies to diverse business areas in CAG, such as Airline Publicity and Marketing, Airport Operations Enhancement, Events Management and Promotion, and Retail Management and Planning.

Interns take on projects in the divisions they are attached to. Under the mentorship and guidance of experienced CAG staff, they have the opportunity to present their project findings to their supervisors and CAG management, and receive constructive feedback to facilitate learning and develop their capabilities. Outstanding interns can also look forward to scholarships and employment opportunities with CAG.

A former intern who is now a CAG staff is Sim Pei Wen, Assistant Manager (Passenger Development). During her internship with the company in 2008, Pei Wen was involved in a project related to the corporatization of Changi Airport. Of her internship and involvement in such a significant project, Pei Wen shared, "It opened my eyes to the dynamism of the aviation industry. The opportunity to be immersed in the airport environment was certainly rare and precious and I benefitted greatly from the many nurturing and coaching mentors at Changi!"

During a visit to Singapore from 26 to 27 February 2011, the French Secretary of State for Transport Mr Thierry Mariani said he was “impressed by the efficient transportation system in Singapore”.

He added that the transportation system here “is indeed one of the most modern systems in the region and reflects Singapore’s clear and forward-looking transport policies.”

While visiting, Mr Mariani called on Mrs Lim Hwee Hua, Minister in the Prime Minister’s Office and Second Minister for Finance and Transport and exchanged views on transport developments and on enhancing bilateral transport cooperation such as in expanding aviation links.

He also visited the Civil Aviation Authority of Singapore (CAAS), the Maritime and Port Authority of Singapore (MPA) and toured Singapore Changi Airport and PSA Pasir Panjang Container Terminal.
